

THE CRISIS PREVAILS.

We are still hard pressed and our only hope is to continue the unmerciful slaughter on our stock. THE EVERLASTING DEMAND IS "CASH." THE IMPERATIVE COMMAND IS "SLAUGHTER." Sacrificed! Sacrificed! What else can we do? Money is our only salvation. We must have it, or Hopkinsville's Greatest Dry Goods Store will succumb to the Inevitable.

500 ELECTRIC COTTON BATS

A ROYAL HAUSFRAU.

Domestic Tastes and Occupations of the German Empress.

A Bit of Court Gossip—How the Princess of Anhalt-Bernburg Became the Wife of the Emperor.

The marriage between the present emperor and empress of Germany was actually not a "love match." In fact, it is said that the time his highness was being discussed the emperor was desperately in love with one of his courtiers, the eldest daughter of the grand duke of Hesse, marriage with whom was impossible, because the dominating Bismarck, whose diplomatically he would have been seriously threatened by it. The iron chancellor therefore arranged the union with Princess Augusta Victoria of Anhalt-Bernburg, with the idea that it might lead to a rather serious breach between the Hohenzollerns and the Prussians.

The pair were married in Berlin in 1881 after a wooing all too brief and cold, and the princess at once discovered that she had a difficult part to play. Between her husband's young lord and his English mother, and the Kaiser Wilhelm and Princess Marie, and at times pulling a different way from the rest, her task was very trying, but the successful result and gradually met the sympathy and respect of every one with whom she came in contact. She had the faculty of speaking the softest words, and her English mother-in-law prevented and pacified many bitter quarrels by a timely word. The old Kaiser grew to like her very well indeed, and her impulsive spouse soon began to manifest more warmth, feeling than a marriage arranged by contract had been bound to show.

From the first the princess showed the domesticity of her lineage, devoting herself as much as possible to household matters and taking no lead in the social affairs of Berlin and as little in those of her husband's empire. Her position since she has become

THE HOME OF GOETHE.

Home of Frankfurt where the first Faust was born.

We saw the old Hohenzollern house of Judentum, writes Hotel H. Floyd in a recent letter from Frankfurt on the Main, and also No. 10, but we did not care to go inside. We saw Goethe's birthplace in the town of Frankfurt, and with recent steps entered the house where the great man was born.

It is a three-story, pink-roofed building, and is kept up with jealous care by the city of Frankfurt, just as it was in Goethe's time. The lower floor, where was formerly the dining room, kitchen and servants' quarters, is now given to the family who take care of the building. The second story, or what is called here the first, consists of the rooms that were used as a school.

When the guests have departed, the royal pair always pay a good night visit to the nursery, and if any one of the princelings is ill the empress will often visit the little abode at this bedside.

Bismarck once asked Frederick, among the letters from Charles Dickens left by his sister, the late Mrs. Austin, in one in answer to one of hers, written to her in her adopted son's name. After pleading a press of business as a reason for refusing the invitation he adds: "Between ourselves, I have the greatest objection to attending a funeral in which my affections are not strongly and immediately concerned. I have no notion of a funeral as a matter of form or ceremony. And, just as I should expressly forbid the summoning to my own funeral of anybody who is not very near or dear to me, so I should very much prefer to see a relative who is only appearing at it to receive the usual share of condolence from the dear to me. I cannot endure being dressed up by an undertaker as part of his trade show. I was in this year of sorrow's home in his life, and I feel that I have no business there when he lies dead in it. My mind is penetrated with sympathy and compassion for the young widow, but that feeling has a little and my attendance as a mourner would not be to myself."

Franklin once wrote Mark Twain in silver money France stands at the head of all nations in the per capita amount—$10 per inhabitant. In 1892, with $10, the United States is third, with $8. Germany has $4.25 and Great Britain $2.14.

DAVIS-WEST

A Double Tragedy At

the Depot Wednesday.

Officer Robt. West Killed By W.

R. Davis, a Suspended

Tollman.

Davis Also Wounded. It May Be Unto

Death.

A terrible tragedy is a recent event.

In a shooting affair at the L. & N.

depot Wednesday morning shortly after night closed, between Policeman Robt. West and Wm. R. Davis,

West was killed and Davis shot through and wounded very dangerously. From the testimony of witnesses at the Coroner's inquest and others questioned by the Kentucky's representative, the facts were arrived at and the account here is correct.

It is necessary to go back to the beginning of the difficulty. Several days ago a woman of improper character came here from Clarksville and Davis took her to a room over a saloon and he and another man spent the greater part of the night with them. Davis was on duty that night from 6 p. m. till 6 a. m. the next morning and his assistants were Officer Smith and West. West learned in some way that Davis had been in the room and told Smith of his violation. After he and Smith had talked about the matter, they decided to report it to the Chief, which was done the next night at 2

a. m. Davis finally left the room and the next morning the matter was laid before Mayor Withers. Davis made a confession and expressed sincere regret for the whole affair and it was left in that shape until the Council met Tuesday night. Commissioner

Flack brought up the matter and offered a resolution to expel Davis from the force. He called upon Chief Price, who narrated the facts as given above. Officer West was present and was called on for a statement.

He said he had not expected to be asked about the matter and was surprised to be called upon to testify, but he said only what the Chief's statement was correct and covered the case. After some discussion it was decided to suspend Davis for ten days, and let him go for trial Sept. 12.

Davis was not present but learned next morning of the action taken.

Smith was in the discussion about the "drinking of champagne" in the room where Davis was. West, however, made no statement of this to the Council. He refused to defend himself more than the matter and was beaten at the headquarters that he was going to West and settle with him about that 4-4-10, or words to that effect. West was on the beat at the L. & N. depot. The Chief's action was not taken until about eight o'clock when Davis was sent coming up the street. He was still on his uniform and arms, though he had been notified to come to exercise the functions of a policeman.

From this point it is proper to let the witnesses give their own version.

D. G. Wiley says: "I was standing on the first platform in conversation with Dr. Bentley, M. R. Nelson, M.

H. Tandy and West. Davis walked up and joined the group and said
